WILLIAMS IS AFTER BANKS

Comptroller's New Order Fixing Interest Charge Limit at Six Per Cent.

SMALL BANKS MAY QUIT

And Resume Under More Liberal State Charters.

The smaller national banks of the State, many of which are doing business under difficult conditions, are much stirred up over the recent pronouncement of John Svelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency, that no national bank will hereafter be permitted to charge more than the legal rate of interest. It is said that about one hundred and fifty Kentucky national banks have intimated to Mr. Williams that an attempt to enforce this order will compel the banks to cancel their charters and seek new charters under the State banking laws.

National Bankers have made complaint that the last few years have placed unusual restrictions and inconveniences upon the national banks, many of which they regard as unnecessary and burdensome. One of these is the constant change and elaboration of the form of the statement of condition which under the law is required of national banks five times a year, irregular periods being selected in order to prevent banks from preparing in advance to make a creditable statement.

Much of the information which the banks are called upon to supply requires much time to tabulate and balance, whereas, formerly the banks were allowed ten days to make this statement of condition. It is now required within five days, an order which in small banks seriously interferes with the routine of business and often entails considerable additional expense to the bank. In addition to these statements to the comptroller, the bank is subject to periodic examination by national bank examiners and the complaint is made that the cost of this examination, which is paid for by the banks, has in many instances been nearly double.

The Federal Reserve Bank system has also added to the problems of the smaller national banks. Each national bank is required to subscribe to the stock of the Federal Reserve bank in its district, and to place its reserves with the Reserve bank. The subscriptions to stock have meant merely so much idle money, as none of the Reserve banks have paid any dividends, and their reports show that a vast bulk of their stored capital has not been invested. While this is said to be due to the general plentifulness of money, and the power of the Reserve banks stands as a potent protection against panics as being able to supply a practically unlimited amount of money in emergencies, bankers have found that the process of borrowing money from a Reserve bank of which it is a member and stockholder, is tedious, unsatisfactory and less conducive to meeting the needs of the business community promptly than was the old system of rediscounts with reserve agents or New York correspondents.

Another source of dissatisfaction arises out of the statements of condition. The Reserve banks, being lenders of money to the national banks, are finding it necessary to call upon the banks for statements of condition similar to the statements called for by the Comptroller. The Federal Reserve board recently made application to the Comptroller for the records of the national banks as shown by the statements of condition, which the Comptroller declined to furnish, making it necessary for the national banks to now make statements when called upon, both to the Comptroller and to the Federal Reserve banks.

The country banks complain also that constant innovations are being

CONTEST CASE PROBABLY WILL COME UP TUESDAY

Hamlett Seeking to Enjoin Count of Recertified Vote.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 29.—The suit of State Superintendent Barksdale Hamlett to enjoin the State Board of Election Commissioners from counting recertified votes in the race for Secretary of State and awarding the certificate of election to J. P. Lewis, his Republican opponent, will be heard probably Tuesday before Judge Stout, of the Franklin Circuit Court. Circuit Clerk Kelly Smith granted a temporary restraining order and the case will come up on motion of the board to dissolve the restraining order.

Superintendent Hamlett said that if the injunction is dissolved he probably will contest the office.

ASKS RECOUNT IN HART

J. P. Lewis Brings Suit in Race For Secretary of State.

Munfordville, Ky., Nov. 29.—J. P. Lewis, Republican candidate for Secretary of State, filed suit in the Hart Circuit Court Friday against Barksdale Hamlett, his Democratic opponent, precinct election officers and Hart County Election Commissioners for mandatory injunction to compel the election officers to reconvene, open the ballot boxes of the contested precinct, count the ballots cast for Secretary of State and tabulate and certify them to the Election Commissioners. The commissioners are to tabulate and certify them to the Secretary of State.

The case will be tried today at Glasgow before Judge S. E. Jones, Judge of the Tenth judicial district. Edwin P. Morrow took similar proceedings before Judge Jones for a recount and a recertification of the vote of this precinct in the Governor's race. As the recount of this precinct was ordered only in the Governor's race, the State Election Commissioners threw the vote out in all the races except the Governor's. Lewis received 91 majority over Hamlett in this precinct.

HEEL CAUGHT AND CRUSHED

Young Man Victim of Serious Accident Near State Hospital Sunday.

Alex Walker, son of Mr. W. W. Walker, had his right foot badly injured Sunday afternoon, when the member was caught in the wheel of a motorcycle. Young Walker was riding behind Claud Brown and as they crossed a culvert near the State Hospital his feet were jarred from their position and one of them was caught in a wheel. The heel was cut and crushed and one of the leaders was severed. He was brought to the city, where he received surgical attention. His injuries are considered very serious.

applied to the conduct of their business by the Comptroller, such as special calls for information, which is already in the files of the Comptroller. Against the unreasonable strictures and demands of the Comptroller's office, they say they have no protection except to give up their charters.

The unanimity with which the banks affected have filed protests with the Comptroller is expected to cause a modification of the order or a tacit understanding that strict enforcement of it will not be attempted where the business conditions of the community or the character of loans make a higher rate of discount essential to careful banking.

ALL DAY SERVICES

Sunday a Succession of Big Meetings in The Culpepper Revival.

MEN ONLY SUNDAY EVENING

Women Only Yesterday Morning and Usual Big Meeting Last Night.

Evangelist Culpepper had a day of almost solid preaching Sunday. There was the usual big morning service, the men's meeting in the afternoon, another overflowing meeting at the tabernacle at night and a special service in the lobby of Hotel Latham after the tabernacle meeting, at which he addressed traveling men briefly. All of the regular meetings were great gatherings of thousands each and Mr. Culpepper continues to preach powerful sermons, in which the "Billy Sunday" features are less conspicuous.

Yesterday morning the service was to women only and every seat in the tabernacle was taken. He evidently has the women with him. When he called on all who endorsed his methods to hold up their hands, practically all of the hands were raised.

Last night the meeting was another tremendous gathering. Mr. Culpepper up to last night had not called for converts, but it is understood this will be the next move in the big revival. His custom is to call them to the front and take down their names and the churches they wish to join. He stated that in a recent instance he sent 83 members to a church whose pastor did not co-operate in the meeting.

It is noted that all the preachers who are in the city are attending these services, which will continue all the week.

SUDDEN DEATH OF J. P. MEACHAM

Funeral at Gracey and Interment in Riverside Cemetery Sunday Afternoon.

J. Parrish Meacham, of Gracey, died suddenly at his home Saturday at 11:40 a. m. His health had been poor for a number of years but recently he had been considerably improved. He was in the city Tuesday. He was taken to his bed that night and was quite sick a day or two, but was better Saturday morning and was sitting up while one of his daughters was reading to him when he was seized with a sinking spell and expired in a few minutes. His physician was quickly summoned but could be of no service to him.

He was a son of the late Rev. A. W. Meacham and was born near Gracey May 6, 1863. He was married in 1886 to Miss Lucy Nance, who survives with four children, three daughters and one son. Two other sons died in infancy. Other near relatives are two brothers and two sisters. He had been a member of West Union Baptist church for more than 25 years and was prominent in church affairs and a leader in the business circles of Gracey. He conducted a general store and other enterprises in Gracey until recently, but had sold these and was devoting his attention to the several farms he owned around Gracey.

The funeral services were held at 11 o'clock Sunday in the church at Gracey, conducted by the pastor, Rev. F. M. Wilson, and the body was brought to this city for interment in Riverside Cemetery at 1:30 o'clock p. m.

DR. ALLEN G. HALL DIED IN NASHVILLE

Was a Native of Christian County and One of The South's Noted Men.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 28.—Dr. Allen Garland Hall, of the Vanderbilt university law department, and one of the south's foremost educators, died at his home on the Vanderbilt campus, after a period of ill health extending over many years. He was 53 years old.

Dr. Hall was born in Lafayette, Ky., July 12, 1862. He was a son of Claudis Buchanan Hall and Selina Jefferson Garland Hall. His early life was spent at Lafayette, Ky., and he received his elementary education in the schools of that community. His family were strong and vigorous of mind, and marked by vigorous and forceful traits of character.

He graduated from Vanderbilt in 1885. He was prominent in the departments of school life, and formed associations that lasted throughout life. He was a college mate of Judge Claude Waller, Walter Stokes, C. C. Slaughter and Mr. Justice Reynolds and other well-known and influential men.

He came to the bar in 1885, shortly after he graduated, and practiced law with success until his health failed him in 1898.

Shortly after coming to the bar he married Miss Lillie Carter Gunn of Cadiz, Ky., and by that marriage two sons were born, Glen Andrews Hall and Fitzgerald Hall, all of whom survive him.

He was a member of the forty-seventh general assembly of Tennessee that met in 1891, and was speaker pro tem. of that body during the session.

It was however, after the failure of his health and what appeared to be almost the close of his career, that he rendered the most conspicuous service both to the community and the state. After spending a year in Texas during the winter of 1898 and 1899, where he recuperated and became again comparatively well, he taught for several years in the city high school, rapidly taking a foremost position in that institution.

In 1903 the board of trust of Vanderbilt university determined to have at least one man give his entire time to the law department of the university, and Dr. Hall was elected professor and secretary of the faculty. He left the public schools at the time and entered the faculty of the law school of Vanderbilt university, in which department he labored the remainder of his life.

BUSINESS REVIVAL PUTS MAIL SACKS TO WORK

Post-office Department, Embarrassed By Rush, Sends Notice to Postmasters.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Enormous quantities of mail moving throughout the country, which the Post-office Department attributes to the progress of the business revival, as well as the approaching holiday season, have caused special notices to be sent to all postmasters.

"Urging to the great revival of business," says an official announcement "the volume of mail has increased to such an extent as to embarrass the department seriously in supplying mail sacks. It is necessary that all surplus sacks and pouches be gathered at the depositories with a view of meeting the extraordinarily heavy demand for empty mail bags that will be made by the service from now until after the holiday season. The emergency which confronts us requires that every sack must be put to work and kept working until the close of the year."

GERMANY HAS ACCOMPLISHED HER PURPOSE

Has Opened Communications With Bulgaria and Turkey.

NOW THROUGH WITH SERBIA

Announced That Operations Against That Country Are Brought to Close.

Berlin, via London, Nov. 29.—With the occupation of Rudnik, the capture of 2,700 prisoners and the "scanty remains" of the Serbian army into the Albanian mountains, Germany's operations against Serbia have been brought to a close, says a general staff statement issued today. The object of the operations—the opening of communications with Bulgaria and the Turkish empire—has been accomplished, it is asserted.

Tribute is paid not only to the bravery and endurance of the Austro-German troops, but to the Serbians as well. The claim is made that more than 100,000 prisoners, nearly 50 per cent. of the Serbian effectives, have been captured. German losses are said to have been "extremely moderate," and there were no disease epidemics.

Since the beginning of the war the number killed amounts to 6,332 wounded 12,561, and missing 1,752, a gross total of 20,702.

Brig. Gen. Forbes Trefusis was killed, Major Gen. Walker wounded, and seven lieutenant colonels killed.

M. H. SMITH UNDERGOES SERIOUS OPERATION

Baltimore Physicians Say He Will Return When Incisions Heal.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 29.—Misses H. Smith, President of the Louisville & Nashville, according to hospital authorities, underwent a second operation for kidney trouble with success. He is resting comfortably tonight and his condition is favorable.

Mr. Smith was carefully treated by the urological staff of the John Hopkins Hospital for about a week prior to the operation. Dr. Young, who was to have performed the operation is still ill and another specialist was called. According to the physicians, Mr. Smith is in no immediate danger. It is believed that he will be able to return to his home as soon as the incisions are healed. The physicians would not give out details.

THREE DESPONDENT WOMEN.

A Sunday paper reported the suicides of three women in one column. At Lebanon, Tenn., Miss Anna Faulkner shot herself in the left breast while despondent and died a few hours later. At Corbin, Ky., Mrs. Jos. Baker was found dead in her house with a shotgun by her side. At Glasgow, Ky., Mrs. R. E. Bridges cut her throat with a razor, cutting into a garter on her neck. She was found in a dying condition.

Henry Ford is the latest humorist to appear in the public eye.

It seems to be about as hard to capture Constantine as Constantinople.

A Nashville laundry company has gone broke. This is strange with as much dirty linen as there is in Nashville.

A young masher at Bowling Green named McClendon has been sent to the workhouse for rushing up to strange girls on the streets and shaking hands with them, pretending to have met them before.

A big Russian army of invasion under Gen. Kuropatkin is massed for moving into Bulgaria, probably to pass through Rumania and attack Varna from the landside while bombarding from the sea.

The convict labor constitutional amendment carried: Yes, 81,739; No, 37,855, and the constitutional amendment providing for the reclassification of property for taxation carried: Yes, 67,449; No, 35,467.

Believing that the efforts of citizens of neutral nations would be considered meddlesome, Governor Felder, of New Jersey, has declined Henry Ford's invitation to be a member of the proposed delegation to establish an international conference to negotiate for peace abroad.

Three United States soldiers were wounded, two probably fatally, and a score of Mexicans are reported to have been killed Friday, when Villa troops, evacuating Nogales, Sonora, before the advance of General Obregon's Carrizal troops, exchanged shots with United States troops across the international boundary. One of the soldiers died the same day and another is liable to die.

The fight led by Hopkinsville for a free tobacco market in the war zone has been won. All restrictions placed on re-export of tobacco to tobacco by the Netherlands Overseas Trust have been removed for the present, in response to representations made to the Netherlands government. American tobacco may now be shipped to any person in Holland, or to the order of anyone there. From Holland, American tobacco may enter Germany and Austria freely.

Boring Holes in Glass.
The simplest and safest way to bore holes in glass is to use a copper or brass tube, quite thin, of the size of the hole. Bore a hole in a small block of wood about one-quarter of an inch thick—hole to fit the tube loosely. Fasten the block to the glass with beeswax, so that the hole corresponds with the required hole in the glass. Insert the tube in the hole and pour emery—No. 90—and water into the tube with a spoon, and turn the tube back and forth with the fingers; or a little grooved pulley may be put on the tube to work with a string, in which case a center should be placed at the upper end to guide the tube. In this way a hole of any size, from one-eighth of an inch to an inch or more, may be cut through ordinary window glass in a few minutes.When Baby Cries.
Fits of crying, indicative of discomfort if not pain, in babies, usually after meals, are quite naturally attributed almost universally to the food. It would be well, however, if attention were given to the clothes at the same time—if there are no other indications of the diet given disagreeing with the baby—for in very many cases these are to blame. Very often there is something tight around the little abdomen, the binder, to which mothers and nurses cling so jealously, being frequently at fault.

Highway Improvement

COST OF ROAD CONSTRUCTION

Much Depends on Amount and Character of Grading Necessary—Other Factors Considered.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The cost of a road is dependent upon not only the type of construction, but the amount and character of grading to be done, the cost of labor and materials, the width and thickness of surfacing, the character and amount of drainage required, and other factors of equal variability. Based upon general averages, it has been ascertained by highway specialists of the United States department of agriculture that under average conditions macadam roads can be built in southern states at from $4,000 to $5,000 per mile, gravel roads at from $1,500 to $2,500 per mile, and sand-clay and top-soil roads at from $800 to $1,500 per mile. In New England and the other eastern states, macadam roads are reported at from $6,000 to $9,000 per mile, gravel roads at from $3,200 to $5,000, and bituminous macadam from $8,000 to $13,000, according to the character of construction, whether surface-treated, penetration, or mixing method. The bituminous type is quite general in the eastern states. As indicating costs in other sections of country, the state highway commissioner of Michigan reported in 1913 the average cost for macadam roads $4,300 per mile, clay-gravel roads $1,500 per mile, and concrete roads about $10,000 per mile. The average cost of state highways constructed in Ohio in 1913 was $8,383. According to types in 1912, the brick-paved highways averaged $14,650 per mile and the macadam highways $5,950. In California the first 356 miles of the state system of highways cost an average of $8,143 per mile and consisted principally of thin concrete with a thin coat of bitumen. The maximum and minimum figures given in this paragraph are not absolute, but are intended to present the usual range of costs. The rates given include grading, drainage surfacing, and engineering costs.

BOOSTER FOR BETTER ROADS

Cost of Transportation of Produce to Market Is Lessened—Ditch, Drain and Drag Roads.

Good roads not only cheapen the cost of transporting farm produce to market, but make the country a desirable place to live in.

We hear much talk about federal aid for good roads, yet if we wait for this movement to crystallize into a reality, the people of the country will be riding in mud for some time to come. The thing to do is to take off coats and buckle into a plan for local road improvement. Be a booster for the grading of roads and follow up the work with the King road drag for maintenance.

The principle of all good roads in all States is the same, viz., keeping the water out and off of the roadbeds. Ditch, drain and drag the roads. This is the tripod of good road building.

ADVANTAGES OF GOOD ROADS

Scarcely Secondary to Rail Transportation in Their Far-Reaching Effect on Civilization.

The two great necessities of modern life are education and transportation, for civilization travels in the wake of good schools and good roads. Good roads lead in more good directions than the most far-seeing can contemplate. Commerce begins on the country roads and byways; they affect school attendance and literacy; they control markets and prices, values of land, the development and contentment of the people, the cost and pleasure of living, and are scarcely secondary to rail transportation in their far-reaching effect. They determine the character and growth of the community, and the necessity for them cannot be overestimated, for a country that isn't worth a good road isn't worth living in.

Idaho Boosts Good Roads.
The Southern Idaho Motor association was perfected at Boise, Idaho, for the purpose of making a good roads campaign in southern Idaho. This marks an important step toward giving impetus to the good roads movement in the state.

Keep Weeds Down.
It does not take long to mow the growth along the roadside, ditch banks and fence rows. You could do it going to and from the fields offices, or when you have an hour to spare,

Rosy As A Girl.

Summit, N. C.—In a letter received from this place, Mr. J. W. Church, the notary public, says: "My wife had been ailing for nearly 12 years, from female ailments, at times, was unable to leave the house. She suffered agony with her side and back. We tried physicians for years, without relief. After these treatments all failed, she took Cardui, and gained in weight at once. Now she is red and rosy as a school girl." Cardui, as a tonic for women, has brought remarkable results. It relieves pain and misery and is the ideal tonic for young and old. Try it. At all druggists.—Advertisement.

POULTRY

FEED HOPPER FOR DRY MASH

Device May Be Made of Any Size to Suit Flock—Slanting Top Keeps Fowls From Roosting.

I find this to be a very good feed hopper for dry mashers. The dimensions given are those of my hopper, but it may be made in any size to suit the size of your flock, writes Mrs. Leo Hopper for Mash or Grit.

H. Johnson of Langsville, O., in Farmers Mail and Breeze. It may also be made into two or more compartments by putting in partitions and so feed shells, dry mash, grit, etc., at the same time. Notice that it has a slanting top. By setting it against the wall the chickens cannot roost on it. It also has a slanting bottom which makes the contents work to the front.

LEARN TO FEED PROFITABLY

Most Difficult Period in Feeding Starts With Baby Chicks—Good Mixture for Dry Mash.

Profitable feeding is something every farmer and poultryman must learn. Without it the most vigorous chicks that were ever hatched could not develop into standard, mature birds. The most difficult period in feeding starts with the baby chicks. If stunted when small, it is "runty" forever; if fed and cared for properly when young it can rustle for itself to a limited extent later.

The baby chick should never be fed until forty-eight hours old, and then a mash of coarse bran and charcoal mixed with hard-boiled eggs is all it will need for two or three days. After the first few days it may be fed mixed grain five times daily, and the mash of bran and eggs three times daily. A good chick ration may be had by mixing ten pounds cracked wheat, ten pounds cracked corn (sifted) and ten pounds, "steel cut" oats. The dry mash is made up of ten pounds bran, ten pounds shorts, five pounds corn meal, five pounds meat scraps and two and one-half pounds charcoal. Feed sour milk if available, giving chicks all they will consume.

ROOSTS MADE VERMINPROOF

Gas Pipes Used for Supports, Instead of Wooden Timbers, Aids in Keeping Parasites Away.

One of the largest poultrymen uses gas pipes instead of the usual wooden fixtures to support his roosts, and thus makes them almost entirely free from mites and other parasites which are so troublesome to poultry raisers. The pipe is bent as shown in the illustration and to hold the roosts in place holes are bored at proper intervals, through which bolts are inserted, projecting far enough above the pipe to hold the roosts in position. The roosts are made as usual and are laid on the pipe without fastening, thus making it easy to remove them for cleaning, etc. The pipes need not be over three-fourths of an inch in diameter, and will be found to be one of the most satisfactory supports for roosts yet devised.

MAKING MONEY FROM SQUABS

Little Chance for Profit With Pigeons Unless Birds Are Kept Free From Insect Parasites.

There is very little chance of making money from squabs unless through cleanliness pigeons can be kept comparatively free from disease and insect parasites. The stock should be carefully watched and any sick birds removed from the breeding pens. The house should be kept dry, clean, well ventilated, and free from drafts. The yards should be kept clean either by scraping the surface and adding fresh sand or gravel or by cultivating the land and planting it to grain if possible. Only good, sound grain should be fed.

Lower Fowls Vigor.

With the general exception of well-cared-for, open-range flocks, the conditions under which practically all fowls are kept, result in a constant tendency toward the lowering of the birds' constitutional vigor.

THE DECEMBER AMERICAN MAGAZINE.

Three unusual articles on the war
are contained in the December American Magazine. Under the title "War the Result of Poor Advertising" Gerald Stanley Lee explains why war is the last resort of governmental publicity bureaus and what takes place in a great country when the national billboards go down.

A town that is built from gunpowder and where the bulk of war orders is filled is described by Merle Crowell, who gives his readers perhaps the best description of the powder industries that has been published since the beginning of the present conflict.

French soldier who let himself be shot for cowardice and desertion rather than kill his enemies.

In his "Annual Christmas Farce" Elwin L. Sabin offers help to the

How to get rid of bad habits and

INSECTS HARM APPLES

Many Orchardists Who Fail to Guard Against Pests.

In Many Cases There is No Excuse for Inferior Fruit Except Neglect of Persons to Carry Out Plans of Spraying.

(By E. P. TAYLOR.)

There are comparatively few orchardists at the present time who doubt the value of spraying apples for the curculio and the codling moth. On the other hand, there are many who are, in reality, not protecting their orchards from those two cardinal apple pests as much as is possible or, indeed, practicable.

It is unnecessary to go into detail in explaining all the reasons why fruit, stung from the codling moth or stung and deformed by the curculio, is permitted. Suffice to say that in many cases there is no reasonable excuse, except the failure of persons to carry out plans of spraying which are already well known to be effective.

There is a strong tendency, however, noted recently among many fruit growers to do more careful and intelligent spraying so that a higher percentage of first-class apples may be produced. A few years of partial fruit failures from adverse and uncontrollable weather conditions makes it even more necessary that in the other years we save our crops

Codling Moth on Apple.

from destruction by insects—an accomplishment quite within our power.

Among the many insects damaging the apple crop there are two which stand out prominently as the most destructive. These are the curculio, the old offender commonly known as the plum curculio, and the well-known codling moth. The damage done to apples alone in the state of Missouri by these two insects in a year when an average crop is borne runs into millions of dollars.

In controlling these and other insects, apple growers should apply their arsenical sprays at times when they will be of the greatest possible service. There is a limit to the number of sprays which can be profitably applied, especially since in many cases it is also necessary to give separate spraying fungicides at times when an insecticide is required, or vice versa.

Spraying is the chief method of control of curculio and codling moth in apple orchards, but there are a number of other natural or artificial checks against both insects which deserve mention.

Banding of the trees to capture the descending worms of codling moths
as they search for a place for pupation was a practice even before spraying for codling moth was begun.
It has been shown that they will sometimes capture as high as 40 per cent of the worms upon the tree, but it cannot be considered a practical operation when such far better results can be accomplished by spraying.
When bands are used they must be looked after every ten days and the worms destroyed, to prevent the moth from maturing and making its escape. If this is not done they will only offer safer hiding places and do more harm than good. They are sometimes useful in trapping the first emerging worms in the summer in order to forecast the date of appearance of second generation worms.

Cultivation of orchards is one of the best of procedures for curculio destruction. It keeps the orchard free from many of the desirable biber-nation places for the adult, and it unquestionably destroys a high per cent of the insects in the ground.

There are many useful natural insect parasites and other enemies of both curculio and codling moth which attack them in practically all their stages and assist very materially in preventing the damage from them being far greater than it is.

CONTROL THE APPLE BORERS

Department of Agriculture Recommends "Worming" and Painting Trees as Effective Method.

"Worming" and painting the trunks of the trees are recommended to owners of apple orchards as efficient methods of dealing with the roundheaded apple-tree borer in a new Farmers' Bulletin, No. 675, of the United States department of agriculture. A heavy application of some paint that will not injure the trees but will remain in an unbroken coat on the bark for two or three months, is effective in preventing the female from laying her eggs in the tree, and greatly reduces the amount of worming, or the removal of the insects with a wire and knife that must be done.

Mrs. Emma Gannon, 107 E. South St., Kewanee, Ill., writes: "For fifteen years I had catarrh of the head and stomach. I could hardly walk. My attention was called to 'The Ills of Life.' I read it through. Then bought a bottle of Peruna. I am entirely well now."

The Horse's Memory.

The suggestion of whether or not a horse has a long memory is one that finds debaters in plenty on either side. Those taking the negative end of the argument, however, are not in accord with M. W. Gentry, of Gentry Brothers' shows, which have been exhibited in every part of the United States.

Mr. Gentry, like all other showmen, seldom tells his experiences. A short time ago, however, he was asked about the memory of horses. Then he told a story that is substantiated by at least one hundred persons.

"Many years ago," said the showman, "when Gentry Brothers never expected to have a show as great as it is now, we had a pony named 'Marie.' She worked in the pony drill. She was a most intelligent animal, but had an ugly head. For three seasons she worked in the act, but when we got other ponies broken in we thought enough of 'Marie' to send her to the stock farm of Gentry Brothers and pension her on hay and clover.

"Five years later, almost to the day, the pony that took 'Marie's' place died on Saturday night. We had no pony to fill the place in the drill. Some one suggested 'Marie.' I caught a train and went to Louisville to meet the pony that was being brought from the farm by a groom.

We quickly transferred her from one depot to the other, and went to Memphis to meet the show. It was due there Monday. Fifteen minutes before the pony drill I led 'Marie' on the show lots. At drill time she took her place in line, went through the drill, and did not miss a 'cue' from the trainer.

RESTRICTION ON TOBACCO LIFTED BY NETHERLANDS

American Weed May Now Be Re-exported to Germany and Austria.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Restrictions upon exportation of tobacco to Holland, through which it was prevented entering Germany, have been lifted by the Netherlands Overseas Trust Company according to a notice to the United States Government announced by Secretary of State Lansing.

Secretary Lansing stated that the Overseas Company had informed him that in the future shipments of tobacco may be made direct to any one in Holland "or order." This will permit the release of close to a quarter of a million of dollars' worth of dark tobacco, now held at Baltimore and Newport News.

The Netherlands Overseas Trust Company, a subsidiary of the Holland-American line of steamers, controls all shipments to Holland, and it undertook to assure Great Britain and her allies that goods consigned to its care would be for the exclusive use of neutrals in Holland. The fact that tobacco was on the list of goods which had to be shipped to the company prevented it being sent through Holland to Germany.

Secretary Lansing's announcement brings to a successful termination the representations made to Great Britain by this Government in behalf of the tobacco growers of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia. Senator James and Representative Sherley have led the fight for the Kentuckians in which all of the Democratic Congressmen shared, while Senator Martin, of Virginia, and Representative Burns, of Tennessee, also took a hand. The representations to the Allies were made through the office of Judge W. B. Fleming, of Louisville, foreign trade adviser of the State Department.

It was held by this country that tobacco from Dutch and English colonies was being permitted to enter Holland without restrictions and that this constituted discrimination against the American growers. To permit free shipments to Holland and through this means to get tobacco into Germany and Austria, it was asserted, would not in any way aid the Central Powers in warfare against the Allies.

Why Editors Are Rich.

A child is born in the neighborhood; the attending physician gets $10. The editor gives the loud-mouth youngster and the happy parents a send-off and gets $50.

When it is christened the clergyman gets $10 and the editor gets $50. It grows up and marries. The editor publishes another long-winded article and tells a dozen lies about the "beautiful bride." The clergyman gets $10 and a piece of cake, and the editor gets $500.

In the course of time it dies. The doctor gets from $25 to $100 and the undertaker gets from $50 to $200, the editor publishes a notice of its death and an obituary two columns long, lodge and society resolutions, a lot of poetry and a free card of thanks, and gets $5000.

No wonder so many editors get rich.—Ex.

NO PLACE LIKE IT

By CATHARINE CRANMER.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

On a pay day the president of the firm sent for Alfred Reed and informed him that he had been promoted to the position of assistant sales manager at a substantial increase in salary.

It was the day that Alfred long had sought, and worked all the harder because it came not. He felt a deep satisfaction not only because it was the reward of his labors, but because it would enable him to ask Mabel Elliott to marry him. Mabel was a pretty little auburn-haired stenographer in another department of the office, and although Alfred had paid her much attention and given her good evidence that he cared for her he had felt that he must wait until he had a substantial salary before he asked her to marry him.

At the first opportunity after being told of his promotion, he went over to her desk to ask her to go to dinner and the theater with him the next evening. As he approached, a blase salesman of perhaps forty was just leaving and was saying something quite confidentially in an undertone. Alfred frowned unconsciously, for he knew the man was unfit company for any girl, and to see him talking familiarly to Mabel made Alfred want to take her away where she would be safe from such profligates, as he inwardly termed the man.

"Has that old bloke been ogling you again?" he asked. But as soon as he spoke he realized that he had let a proprietary note get into his voice. Mabel, being young and pretty and auburn-haired, didn't like the idea of being approached without due procedure according to the usual rules of the game.

"If you're speaking of Mr. Acton, I think you're putting it rather strong, for he certainly knows how to be nice to a girl. And just because I wrote two or three letters for him he wants to take me to dinner at the best hotel in the city." Mabel was childishly frank and only slightly resentful of Alfred's remark. "And maybe I don't like to sail into a big dining room with a man who knows just how to do things. It's a real adventure. Alfred, and adventures don't come along every day to red-headed stenographers."

"Mabel, I came here purposely to ask you to go out with me tomorrow evening," said Alfred. "If you'll go, we'll make it as much of an adventure as I know how." And he added a more explicit invitation, which Mabel accepted with only moderate enthusiasm, for there was in her the spirit of daring that made her want to throw off conventions and accept Acton's invitation in spite of its being a sort of unwritten law about the office that stenographers who went out with that type of salesman were running a risk of being undestably classified.

The next evening, when they entered the big hotel dining room, Mabel was a lovely picture in a soft, white gown, a black velvet hat set at the correct angle on her glistening auburn hair and her eyes almost a match in color for the violets she wore. Alfred tried to make the grand entry as though accustomed to it, but the very effort made success impossible, and he was painfully conscious that Mabel would realize that he was not a man who knew "just how to do things."

In some way, though, they managed to get seated, and while looking over the menu Alfred regained outward composure, though he was unpleasantly conscious of the proximity and veiled acrimony of the waiter. Conversation lagged somewhat and Mabel cast many an admiring glance at the bare-shouldered, soft-gowned and sleek-coiffured ladies who languidly passed accompanied by men in evening dress. Conversation seemed to lag with many of the couples, too, but the orchestra played loudly from popular light operas and occasionally a high soprano contributed an aria.

"Isn't it lovely?" asked Mabel. "I'm glad you are enjoying it; but it looks to me like a lot of these regulars are not enjoying it at all. See how bored this couple over here is? And he indicated with a glance a handsome woman and broad-looking man near by.

"They must live here for that table was held for them, and I saw them in the parlor without hats or wraps when we first came in." Mabel's observation of all these details brought a slight smile from Alfred.

"Well, married people with no home but a hotel are likely to be bored with each other and with everything else, I should think."

"Mercy! I don't see why; I think it's lovely to eat in a hotel where there's music and flowers and no housework to manage and lots of pretty things all about." Mabel's eyes swept the room as she spoke.

"Maybe you don't see why people get bored with it because you don't see the main part of their lives, but only a little of the glitter on the outside."

They were destined to have a glimpse underneath the glittering surface, though, for the voices of the bored-looking couple near by grew audible. There was a tenseness in the manner of this couple that seemed to extend from them to those near them, and although Alfred and Mabel tried to keep up their little conversation, it in no way interfered with their hearing every word said by their neighbors at that other table.

"Harry Lyons, I'll collapse if this goes on an hour longer." The handsome woman had her hands clenched in her lap.

"You mean you'll have this whole room full of people see you make a dunce of yourself, if you're not careful," said the man, with quiet sarcasm.

"What do I care for this room full of people? I'm sick of them and of everything. We've made a complete mess of our lives."

"And who made the mess, I wonder? How many women know when they are well off? I dare say most people who would see you living in this big hotel with nothing to do but dress up and come and go as you please would think you were having things pretty easy, and yet you talk of collapsing. You have had homes, but none of them suited, and now with the finest suite in the best hotel in town you are less contented than ever."

"Well, you have thought of nothing but making money and have left me nothing to do but spend it."

"When we had our first home out in Woodlawn I had to hustle to meet the payments, but it was too quiet and the days were too long for you; then moving from one apartment to another and taking up with a swifter set of people at each move, we've finally landed where we are, with not a single real friend about us just because we haven't been real ourselves. I'd have been glad enough to be at home many a night that we have been gallivanting around."

"Oh, of course, a woman always expects to be blamed when things go wrong; since Adam's time men have been entirely consistent in that one way."

Just at this point an elderly gentleman diner called the head waiter and sent him to the orchestra leader with a message written on a visiting card. A moment later, the singer, responding to an encore, smiled in the direction of the elderly gentleman and in her clear voice began to sing "Home, Sweet Home."

Mabel was fascinated with the fate of the handsome woman who had been quarreling with her husband. At the first few words of the song her eyes had a scared expression, then a faraway, infinitely sad one, and gradually her head sank lower until her chin rested on the roses at her corsage. The man lit three cigarettes and threw them aside in an incredibly short time. When the singer reached that line about "An exile from home, splendor dazzles in vain," the woman's head came up quickly and she looked appealingly at her husband.

Then she attempted to rise, but grew white and swayed, the man just barely managing to catch her as she fell. Many diners rose, but the husband held his wife with one arm and held out the other hand warningly to those about him. Again the tenseness extended to all the people near him. Just as the singer concluded the song, the woman raised her head and without seeming to know that anyone but her husband was near, said in a pitifully tired voice: "Our exile is over, Harry; let's go home."

Mabel and Alfred were perhaps the only ones who knew all that she meant. When they were putting on their wraps afterward Alfred saw tears in Mabel's eyes, but neither of them spoke until they reached the sidewalk.

"I've seen enough of glitter tonight; let's not go to the theater," said Mabel. And when they reached her little home in an old-fashioned flat Alfred told of his promotion and secured her promise to help him build a home like which no place would ever be found.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for free literature.

Exchange. Many readers, perhaps a large majority of them, old as well as young will find new information in the following paragraph taken from The Evangelist:

St. Matthew is supposed to have suffered martyrdom or was slain with the sword at the city of Ethiopia, in Egypt. St. Luke was hanged upon an olive tree, in Greece. St. John was put in a caldron of boiling oil at Rome, and escaped death at Ephesus in Asia. St. James the Great was beheaded at Jerusalem. WARDEN REFUSES TO HANG MAN HE BELIEVES INSANE

Arizona's Attorney General to Ask That Official Be Cited For Contempt.

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 29.—Basing his action on a certificate signed by two physicians stating that William Faltin, sentenced to hang, was insane, Warden R. Sims, of Arizona State penitentiary, refused to go forward with the execution and brought the question of Faltin's mental condition before the County Court here.

The court ordered a hearing on the prisoner's condition before a jury for a date not later than Dec. 13. The action of the court acts automatically as a stay of execution.

Faltin was convicted of the murder three years ago of Carl Peterson.

Wiley Jones, Attorney General of Arizona, said he was preparing a petition to be filed before the State Supreme Court asking that Warden Sims be cited for contempt. Faltin's death warrant was signed by all three justices of the Supreme Court after the decision of the lower courts in the case had been affirmed.

It was the contention of the Board of Pardons and Paroles and of the Attorney General that Faltin was not insane. The Attorney General said that execution could have been legally suspended only by an order of the court before whom the question of insanity was brought.

MAKE MONEY IN DAIRY

Better Prices Secured for Milk
in Winter Than in Summer.

Average Farmer Can Pay More Attention to Work in Cold Weather Than When Crops Are Growing—Cows Must Be Fed.

(By R. B. RUSHING.)

The profits in winter dairying are often greater than those obtained from the milk that is made in the summer. This, however, is because prices for milk, cream and butter are usually much better in the winter than in the summer and often the question of labor is not so acute in the winter season.

I find it necessary to have some of my cows come fresh in the fall where such profit is to accrue from the winter dairying. About half the cows coming fresh in the fall equalize the milk supply the year around.

The cost of producing winter milk should not be contrasted with summer milk in figuring profits, because the cows have to be kept anyway, and just about as much feed would have to be fed if the cows were drying up as if they were in milk, if they are fed as they should be.

There is of course more feed given in the winter when the milk production is being stimulated, but that additional feed is about the only charge that should be added. Since the cows have to be fed anyway the whole year around, the average cost of feeding should be figured summer and winter.

Adding to that the little extra feed that must be given to stimulate milk production, should be the real cost of winter milk production. Milk and dairy products are easier to market in the winter than in the summer, the milk being cooled with cold air and the cream kept in the same way.

I always look forward to the winter dairying as I do to winter profits in the poultry yard. I think that all will agree with me that the largest profit is to be made from winter laying, and I, for one, have found it just so with the winter dairying.

When a man has a well-filled silo there is no reason why the milk flow should not be kept up during the winter. The feeding of the good sweet silage will afford June pasture during January and February.

By being thus supplied with the succulent feed, with the addition of enough concentrated feed to balance the ration the milk flow will be kept up to its average in the summer.

There is another point in favor of dairying in the winter for the farmer who is not making dairying his specialty. Dairying, like everything else, must have personal supervision and the average farmer can give much more attention to the work during the winter than he can during the summer when the work of making the crops is pushing hard.

GENERAL FARM NOTES

Be master of your own barn.

Study rations for each cow.

Grow your own feeds to the utmost.

Milk comes by invitation, not force.

Seek June conditions in feeding in December.

Tickle the cow's palate and increase production.

Study the whole problem from a business standpoint.

Test, weigh, weed out. The margin of profit allows no guess work.

Brains in the milk pail insure quality, quantity, and cleanliness.

More sunshine for the big producers, more fresh air for the whole herd.

No man can succeed by being simply a machine capable of performing so much labor.

Be content with nothing but reaching after more.

Clean every particle of fertilizer out of the drill before putting it away, or the parts will rust.

Good cows are never cheap, are hard to find and harder to buy. Re-enforce your dairy from your own best cows.

Do not be cursed by feeding a mass of stuff under the name of mixed feeds, made we know not how.

And a woman can bear 20 children or again, she may listen to all the cries of all the little children born into the world for as long as her life shall last, but the first cry of her first-born, she will know that little cry from out of them all. Sixty years and more that was, and 'tis singing again in my ears. And always it will. And from that first cry my mind went on—every hour of his growth to the last day I had nursed him on the cliff in the sun, he looking up from my breast to my face and then wisely out over the sea, as if himself, too, was waiting the sight of the brown yawl of his father sailing in from the west.—From "Mother Machree," by James B. NOT CONDUCTIVE TO OLD AGE

Youngster of 80 Is Told by Man of 92 He Will Never Be Old Man on Account of Habits.

The late John Bigelow, the patriarch of diplomats and authors, and the no less eminent physician and author, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, were together several years ago at West Point. Doctor Bigelow was then ninety-two and Doctor Mitchell eighty.

The conversation turned to the subject of age. "I attribute my many years," said Doctor Bigelow, "to the fact that I have been most abstemious. I have eaten sparingly and have not used tobacco and have taken little exercise."

"It is just the reverse in my case," explained Doctor Mitchell. "I have eaten just as much as I wished, if I could get it; I have always used tobacco, immoderately at times, and I have always taken a great deal of exercise."

With that, Ninety-two Years shook his head at Eighty Years and said: "Well, you will never live to be an old man!"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Hearty Welcome.

"And who are you?" asked St. Peter as he peeped through the slats of the pearly gate.

"Why, I'm of the earth earthy," replied the new arrival. "Just out of college."

"Good!" exclaimed the old man. "We need somebody to tell us how to run this place, so come right in and give us the benefit of your advice."

The Hospitable Board.

"Your wife's dinner parties are always beautiful affairs."

"Yes," replied Mr. Cumrox. "At first people didn't seem to want to come to 'em. I guess maybe the high cost of living is making a difference."

WOULD FOR NOTHING.

"Fido, sit up and show the gentleman how to kiss me, and I'll give you some nice dinner."

"I'll do the same thing, and I won't ask for any dinner as a reward, either."

What He Would Like.

Hobo—Please gimme a nickel, ma'am?

Old Lady—Didn't I see you coming out of a saloon a moment ago?

Hobo—I guess mebbe you did, ma'am.

Old Lady—Well, I wonder you are not ashamed to own it.

Hobo—I don't own it, ma'am. I only wish I did.

Manipulating the Scales.

"Your daughter is doing fairly well with her music," said the professor, "but somehow she just can't run the scales properly."

"Oh, I suppose that's an inherited trait," rejoined the fond mother. "Her father made his money in the grocery business."

Had Practice.

"Why should they?"

"Yet they are always blowing about their business."

Classy Conversation.

"Gee, that harbor shop must have a fashionable patronage."

"Why so?"

"Fellow that shaved me actually started to talk golf to me."

Brown's Home Life.

Jones—I don't see your husband at the club of late, Mrs. Brown!

Mrs. Brown—No. He stays at home now and enjoys life in his own way as I want him to.

Exactly.

"I don't believe the woman who has the next apartment to ours ever touches her parlor carpet."

"My dear, that's a sweeping arraignment."

Of Course Paw Knew.

Little Lemuel—Say, paw, what is an upstart?

Paw—An upstart, son, is a self-made man who isn't your friend.

Now Lemuel Knows.

Little Lemuel—What's an auction, paw?

Paw—An auction, son, is a forbidden place.

Since taking it, I do all the housework for my family of nine, and have not been in bed a day. Cardui is the greatest remedy for women, on earth." Weak women need Cardui. ADD SALAD DISHES TO MENU

People Today Eat Too Much Cooked Food That Is Frequently Lacking in Nutritive Qualities.

It has long been a joke how cats and dogs, when out of sorts, fly to grass or some kind of green food for relief. The animal knows by instinct what only a few human beings are beginning to learn from experience—namely, that nature has provided vegetables of the leaf order, rich in mineral salts. These salts possess a double power—they not only combine with the acids and poisons in the body, rendering them powerless, but they also drive them out of the system altogether.

It is not too much to say that no great mental, moral or physical progress can be made without an ample supply of this vegetable food. Salad is the one ingredient of our regular diet which we cannot afford to do without.

Some people say salad is cold and indigestible, but cabbage, if eaten raw, needs only two and a half hours for digestion, as against five hours when boiled! The boiling of green foods destroys the original organic combination of the mineral salts.

The blood of a healthy person should be alkaline—that is, the opposite of acid—and it is the alkaline salts in vegetables which bring about this healthy condition.

Many thousands of men and women of all ages suffer from anemia, from having lived almost entirely on cooked food.

To those long accustomed to highly flavored food, salads will at first seem tasteless, but a liking for them comes with use.

Salad should be very carefully washed in several changes of clean water. This is essential. During washing the leaves should be well picked over and inspected.

Leaves should be torn, not cut. When done, they can be allowed to soak for an hour, or overnight, but not longer in cold water, to which a little lemon juice has been added to increase the crispness of the leaves.

The Japanese use the petals of many flowers for salads. Chrysanthemums, stocks, violets, roses, nasturtiums and dandelions are especially good, as they possess strong antitoxic powers.

PARSNIP NOT GIVEN ITS DUE

With Proper Preparation the Vegetable Should Be One of the Greatest Table Favorites.

Do you like parsnips? If you don't, why don't you? If they cost as much as French artichokes—which have far less flavor—wouldn't you like them? Perhaps the reason they have never appealed to you is because they are so common that they are fed to the cattle. Often our likes and dislikes for food are based on such reasoning.

Of course, parsnips must be carefully cooked to be really worth the eating. Baked parsnips have a delicious flavor. To prepare them, wash them and pare them and steam them until tender. Then slice them lengthwise and put them in a baking dish, with butter and pepper and salt sprinkled over them. Bake them until brown in a moderate oven.

Parsnip salad is made of parsnips that have been steamed until tender, sliced crosswise, dredged in flour and fried brown in butter. Chill them and put them on lettuce leaves and add a teaspoonful of chopped ham and one of hard-boiled egg chopped fine to each plate. Sprinkle a little chopped parsley over them and serve with mayonnaise.

Parsnip fritters are made from mashed boiled parsnips. To a pint of it add a teaspoonful of flour, a well-beaten egg and salt and pepper. Make into flat cakes and fry brown.

Scalloped parsnips: Mix two cupsful of cold, mashed parsnips with two tablespoonfuls of butter and cream enough to make smooth. Put in a pudding dish, sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs and bake until brown.

White Bread.

Into your bread mixer put one cupful of flour, one tablespoonful of salt, three tablespoonfuls of sugar and a heaping tablespoonful of lard. Then pour in one pint of boiling water; stir until smooth and allow to cool. Add one quart of lukewarm water and one-half a yeast cake dissolved in one cupful of lukewarm water. Then add flour enough to make a firm dough; knead until smooth. In the morning mix into loaves and allow to raise. Bake for one hour. This recipe makes three loaves.

Italian Mold.

Cook two tablespoonfuls of rice until tender in a pint of milk in a double saucepan, with the very thin rind of a lemon. Sweeten to taste, add three sheets of leaf gelatin and the yolks of three eggs. Let cook in a double saucepan a few minutes longer to cook the yolks; add the whites, stiffly beaten and two tablespoonfuls of cream. Pour into a wetted mould and turn out when stiff and set.

Peach Bombe.

Scald a quart of milk, add a heaping teaspoonful of cornstarch mixed with four tablespoonfuls of sugar. Cook until the mixture coats the spoon. Mix a pint of whipped cream and one pint of raw peach pulp to the scalded milk. Freeze to a mush, turn to a two-quart bowl, mold and pack in ice and salt for two hours.

For Egg-Stained Silver.

Egg stains can be removed from silver by applying dry salt with a soft cloth.

Impetus to Kentucky Trade Expected by New Foreign Demand.

Tobacco men of the State are greatly pleased with news received from the American embassy at London announcing Great Britain and the Netherlands Governments have removed all restrictions on the shipment of tobacco to neutral countries, interpreting it as meaning German and Austrian markets will be reopened to millions of pounds of Kentucky tobacco now stored in warehouses in the State and at sea ports.

It was expected Great Britain would yield to the demands of American representations relative to removal of restrictions on tobacco shipping and average prices on Kentucky tobacco have experienced a general advance of 25 per cent. during the last sixty days in anticipation of free and open markets. Kentucky buyers, shippers and exporters have been especially active in the organized movement of American tobacco men who brought great pressure to bear in their efforts to remove the embargo on tobacco.

PORTS REOPENED.

The announcement from London is interpreted as meaning the ports of Holland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark will be reopened to unrestricted tobacco shipments, whence the product will find its way into Germany, Belgium and Austria. The latter countries always have been, until the beginning of the European war and England's subsequent imposition of trade restrictions, the principal market for millions of pounds of dark tobacco grown in Western Kentucky in the Hopkinsville district.

The lifting of the restrictions on the tobacco trade naturally will create a new foreign demand for the product and lend impetus to the trade here. With the expected improvements in shipping facilities, it is believed millions of pounds of Kentucky tobacco now stored in warehouses at New Orleans, Mobile, Norfolk, Baltimore, Newport News and New York soon will be en route to European markets. This engagement along the seaboard resulted because exporters who bought the product during last year have been unable to ship to foreign markets, where there is a demand for Kentucky and Tennessee tobacco. A recent statement issued by the Government shows there was a 97,000,000-pound shortage in tobacco exports during the past year.

KENTUCKY CROP TO MOVE.

As soon as the accumulation of tobacco begins to move from American ports the crop stored in Kentucky warehouses, estimated at 12,000,000 pounds, also will be shipped, thereby bettering conditions here and the outlook for the coming crop. Most of this estimated 12,000,000 pounds is in the warehouses of Western Kentucky, the hub of the dark tobacco trade.

What resumption of the foreign tobacco trade means to prices has been reflected in the general advance during the last two months. Common tobacco, which formerly sold at from 4 to 5 1/2 cents a pound, now brings prices ranging from 5 to 7 cents. Whether prices will continue to advance after a steady flow begins into foreign ports will depend on competitive prices quoted by other countries which ship tobacco to Holland. Java is one of the United States chief rivals in supplying Rotterdam and Amsterdam with tobacco.

BETTER TIMES COMING.

Officials of the Tobacco Board of Trade and prominent brokers, warehousemen and exporters of the city agree as one man in their interpretation of the announcement from London. The reopening of the long closed foreign markets has caused them to unite in prophecies that bigger and better times are coming for the tobacco trade here.

Some tobacco has been shipped abroad since the beginning of the war, but restrictions imposed by Great Britain almost had choked the life out of the trade.

Here is a list of all his winnings: Trip to State Fair, $25.00; State prize 1st on 10 ears, 4.00; State prize, 1st on judging, 15.00; State prize certificate Clark's Business College, special, 20.00; Three prizes Pennyroyal Fair, 25.00; Special best ear, Wall & McGowan, rain coat, 5.00; Special, best 10 ears, Keach, Morris chair, 15.00; Special, greatest yield, Anderson & Co., suit and outfit, 25.00; $134.00.

Much of this corn will be sold for seed at $3 a bushel and all of it will average $2 a bushel, or $203.60.
